Nursery Class

The Nursery class have been given the opportunity to participate in Forest School sessions. Forest Schools encourage children to learn new skills through their own discovery in a natural environment. The sessions are taking place in the school garden and woodland area and are being led by the school gardening teacher Jane Booth. This Wednesday was our second Forest School session and it was a lovely warm day. The children were all very excited to attend this class, dressed in their wellies and sun hats, and thoroughly enjoyed the activities provided for them. They all had a fantastic time learning how to make clay by collecting jugs of water and mixing it with soil. They then made amazing models using the clay. The children also used the clay to make paint, which they enthusiastically used to paint the walls. What the children enjoyed most was being able to get very muddy and messy while they explored the great outdoors. They discovered many different plants and minibeasts and were all amazed by the giant slug they found. The children came back to nursery excited to share their experiences with others and looking forward to attending the next session. A big thank you to all the parents who were able to support the sessions over the last two weeks by attending and we encourage other nursery parents to come along to future classes, which take place on a Wednesday afternoon from 1.30pm.
